IN THE PAST DECADE, GREATER RECOGNITION HAS ARISEN ABOUT THE CRITICAL ROLE OUR COMMUNITIES PLAY IN GENERATING DISEASE AND IN PROMOTING WELLBEING. SUCH COMMUNITY EFFECTS ARE EXPRESSED THROUGH THE POSITIVE AND NEGATIVE SOCIAL AND PHYSICAL DETERMINANTS OF HEALTH AND WELLBEING THAT ARE OPERATIVE IN EVERY COMMUNITY. THIS YEAR'S CONFERENCE WILL EXPLORE HOW THE PUBLIC AND PRIVATE SECTORS CAN COME TOGETHER IN LOCAL COMMUNITIES IN A JOINT EFFORT.

Sunday, November 3, 2019

9:30 – 3:00 Pre-conference: Connections and Thriving Communities: Schools, Mental Health & Safety

This National Dialogues for Behavioral Health preconference will address the four critical factors necessary for integrating care with a focus on the timely topic of School Mental Health and Safety. Presentations will focus on approaches used by first responders in relations to families and communities, what behavioral health providers are doing with regard to prevention, intervention and school based mental health and what state behavioral health agencies are doing to address school mental health and safety in collaboration with other systems, providers and communities.

Speakers: Andrea Duarte (CT), Meighan Haupt (VA), Kathy Edmondson (LA), Holly Galland, MD (LA), Brian Hepburn, (VA), Sharon Hoover (MD), Bethany Sclafani (LA), More TBA

8:45 – 9:00 Overview of the conference and what is to come
Mary E. Smith (IL), NDBH President

9:00 – 12:00 Terms of Engagement: Key First Step to Connecting Care
Engagement is defined as participation, sharing or involvement. In behavioral health, we may talk about the engagement of an individual in their care, but are we engaging all parties needed for the care of this individual. This session will focus on identifying who the players are, their roles, how they can engage with each other and how they can engage to get to connected care using training, data, and communication.
Speakers: Marie Williams (TN), Chris McGee (CT), More TBA

12:00 – 1:30 LUNCH (on your own)

1:30 – 4:30 Collaborations: An Essential Building Block for Creating Value
This session will share novel models of successful collaborations created to address a variety of behavioral and physical health needs ranging from public health outbreaks and epidemics, emergencies, homelessness, over incarceration and reentry, and managing community-based behavioral health crises.
Speakers: Karya Lustig (CA), Jan Tarantino (LA), More TBA

8:30 – 11:45 Connecting Care: Examples of Why, Who & How
Providers within and across systems must work as a team and have clear, ongoing communication, shared responsibility, follow-up, and warm hand-offs to connect the specific care needed to meet and sustain the physical and behavioral health care needs of the individual and/or family members. This session will address connecting care by discussing the following: What is needed to connect care? What does connecting care look like? What is the role of physicians and behavioral health providers in connecting care? and much more.
Speakers: Tiffany Anderson-Washington (MS), Elizabeth Peterson (NM), More TBA

1:30- 4:30 Outcomes: Measuring Value
This session will review different approaches to outcomes and will propose solutions regarding how to develop outcomes that will be responsive at different levels to the emergent models of behavioral healthcare, including the critical areas addressed in the conference: integrated care, connected care and social determinants approaches. A major challenge is developing measures for intermediate outcomes related to engagement, collaboration and coordination.
Speakers: Vijay Ganju (TX), More TBA

8:30 – 11:30 Value Based Approaches: Challenges and Opportunities
The purpose of this session is to review the various approaches to value-based measurement and to explore how the definition and the measurement of value in ways that include engagement, collaboration and connected care are addressed and the challenges that exist in incorporating them. This session will also explore how the key operational concepts developed earlier in this conference have been used in community-wide programs designed to improve health, wellbeing and prosperity to both create and measure value.
Speakers: Nick Macchione (CA), More TBA
